Ali Mammadov

Frontend Developer

👤 Passionate Programmer

Hey, I'm Ali, a 17 year old web developer motivated by the desire of programming. I believe that age is just a number when it comes to creativity, skill, and drive. I have been building websites and applications which has equipped me with the knowledge of zeal and ambition. I welcome the potential to be part of a modern team and make a difference in the digital world. I am ready to be a part of a never ending learning cycle while still being on the latest trends of the web tech.

💼 Experience

Frontend Development (Gym App)

Developed an intuitive gym application in React, ensuring ease of use and fluid movement within the application. Employed a component based system architecture, integrated the react-router-dom and mui-material dependencies to improve the functionality of the application and user experience and applied API to fetch and present workout plans used in the application.

Frontend Development (Restaurant)

Created a responsive restaurant website application through React and incorporated additional features files such as folder structures for efficiency over time. Some dependencies such as react-icons were integrated to improve development.
